PublishAmerica Presents Johnnie Saigon No Band Played by John J. Di Sanza

Frederick, MD October 17, 2006 -- PublishAmerica is proud to present Johnnie Saigon No Band Played by John J. Di Sanza, of Dunedin, FL. No band played when Johnnie came marching home; he slipped in on the winds of defeat during the turbulent sixties. From the concrete jungles of the Bronx to the jungles of Vietnam, Johnnie Saigon (the Italian-American kid, the soldier, the New York City gypsy-cab-driving Vietnam vet) ultimately survives his descent into heroin addiction, despair, disillusionment, and the war that raged within him during the dawning of the Age of Aquarius. Johnnie conveys, through his stories, the effect that serving his country had on him and on the other men and women who fought for and returned to a divided nation. His stories serve as a testament to the resilience of those who survived and a remembrance of the many that did not.

John Joseph Di Sanza was born in the Fordham Section of the Bronx, New York, in 1947. In addition to writing, he is an accomplished actor and an artist who calls his body of work LIVED ART. He is a kid from the city who never forgets where he came from.

PublishAmerica is the home of 20,000 talented authors. PublishAmerica is a traditional publishing company whose primary goal is to encourage and promote the works of new, previously undiscovered writers. Like more mainstream publishers, PublishAmerica pays its authors advances and royalties, makes its books available in both the United States and Europe through all bookstores, and never charges any fees for its services. PublishAmerica offers a distinctly personal, supportive alternative to vanity presses and less accessible publishers.
